

The Australian Curriculum Review – public consultation

- The public consultation window is 10 weeks, from 29 April until 8 July, 2021.
- Revisions to all eight learning areas (English, Mathematics, Science, Humanities and Social Sciences, The Arts, Technologies, Health and Physical Education, and Languages), five general capabilities and the three cross-curriculum priorities are available for consultation.
- The Review has been a national collaborative process with revisions developed with help from states and territories, curriculum experts and teachers around Australia.
- This is a public consultation – anyone can provide feedback. ACARA encourages all feedback, as feedback will help us ensure the Australian Curriculum continues to remain world class and meet the needs of students.
- Feedback can be provided by completing an online survey. There are separate surveys for each learning area, the general capabilities and the cross-curriculum priorities. The surveys can be found on the Australian Curriculum consultation website: www.australiancurriculum.edu.au/consultation
- The online survey can be completed by individuals or groups, such as schools and professional associations. The learning area survey is designed so you can give high-level feedback about the overall proposed revisions or more detailed feedback about specific year levels.
- The consultation version of the Australian Curriculum for each learning area is provided in three formats. You can choose the format that best suits you – a full version showing all the curriculum elements, a version showing just the scope and sequence of learning, and a comparative document showing the proposed revisions against the current curriculum.
- At the end of the consultation window, all feedback will be reviewed and considered in finalising the revised Australian Curriculum.
- The Institute for Social Science Research at The University of Queensland has been contracted to undertake independent analysis of the data collected through the surveys and to develop reports to assist ACARA in making final revisions.
- The final revisions will then be provided to education ministers for their consideration and endorsement.
- Following education ministers' approval, the curriculum will be available on an improved, redesigned Australian Curriculum website at the start of 2022.
